

Survey and interpretation of standing structures carried out to recognised and defined specifications as required by planning authorities, developers and conservation bodies. Typically surveys will be carried out using a reflectorless total station. Results can be supplied in various formats to meet the client's needs. Additionally we can carry out detailed photographic surveys of buildings in a variety of formats. These can be carried out from ground level or from a pole or kite elevated platform.

We have specialist knowledge of the development, form and function of industrial buildings.
